Working with young people: Endorsement of principles

The Education Act 2002 expects education providers to check that nationally recognised principles of working with young people are endorsed by employers offering work experience.

By endorsing these principles, you are ensuring that the placement is a secure and productive environment for both you and the student.

Environment

Where possible avoid being on your own in an isolated or closed environment with a young person for extended periods.

Travel

Where possible ensure that there is a known destination and check-in times with a third party in situations where a young person will be travelling alone with an adult during placement. It is a good idea to check the student has a mobile phone in such situations.

Mentor

Those placed immediately in charge of young people should be competent in their work-role, mature in their attitudes and yet, at the same time, be at ease with young people.

Personal contact

There may be occasions when physical contact is unavoidable (e.g. when you are guiding them in carrying out a technical operation) but these should be kept to a minimum.

Behaviour

Whilst it is important to reassure a young person who may be nervous in a new placement and reliant on your guidance, avoid being over familiar.

Disclosure

Occasionally young people may disclose confidential information to a work colleague that gives rise to concern for their physical or emotional safety. In such situations you should speak to your line manager and share your concern with an appropriate member of staff at the school/college.

Disqualification

You are required by law to protect children from harm and that any employees are required, under the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act, to declare if they are disqualified from working with children.

Internet

We would appreciate organisations offering work experience doing all they practically can to reduce the risk of young people being able to access unsuitable websites.

For our part we undertake to make it clear to students that the same internet access protocol that applies in school/college also applies to placements.

If anyone in the workplace becomes concerned about any inappropriate student communications we would ask you to contact the school/college immediately.
